Bartolomé Pinto 104, cerro San Juan, Valparaíso, Chile

Lullaillaco (6730 meters / 22109 ft)

With a long and winding approach by 4x4 vehicle, the 6.739 meters of Lullaillaco volcano receive few visitors. Its summit, besides being the third highest in Chile, is the highest archaeological site in the world due by the finding in it and around the remains of funerary offerings left there by the Incas.

We offer our experience to organize and guide your expedition to Lullaillaco volcano.

Route: North Face

Difficulty: Easy plus (F+). Ascent on two large snowfields of up to 30 degrees. Large unstable boulders terrain between the first col and the summit. Prior experience needed in ascends of longer than two days to three thousand meters carrying backpacks of 15 kg weight.

Recommended season: From August to December, 2018
